

Call for nominations for the Jozien Bensing Award 2016

The Jozien Bensing Research Award is an award for talented early-career researchers awarded biennially at the conferences of the European Association for Communication in Healthcare (EACH). The award was first given in 2008. The fifth Award will be presented at the EACH conference in Heidelberg in September this year.

The award is meant for researchers in the first ten years of their research career, for example within ten years of PhD or similar qualification, allowing for career breaks. Nominations can be sent by candidates themselves or by senior colleagues with the candidates' agreement. Nominators should be members of EACH. On the acceptance of the award, the winner should be a member of EACH.

The award consists of € 2000 and a commemorative sculpture.

The deadline for nominations is June 1st, 2016.

The nomination should consist of:

- An updated CV of the nominee, including a list of publications
- A copy of the favourite publication by the nominee (in the eyes of the nominee him/herself)
- Two letters of recommendation by senior colleagues or others, which describe the accomplishments of the candidate and make clear why this nominee is particularly promising and talented in the field of health care communication research.

The jury for the award consists of former and current Presidents of EACH and former recipients of the award and is chaired by Prof. Arnstein Finset.
